Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescription from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. A Mexican Attempts to Kill a Woman.

SHOT TWICE THROUGH THE ARM

F. M. Garrett Makes a Statement Concerning His Family Affairs—Other City Events

About 9 o'clock last night a Mexican, named Manuel Ramirez, shot at and wounded Maria Antonia de Green, a widow, at No. 504 East Eighth street, and, failing in his attempt to kill her, shot himself in the left ear to avoid being taken alive. He also shot five times at the two citizens who captured him and notified the police. It appears that for some time past his victim and another widow named Refugia Redondo have been living at the house where the shooting occurred, with a family named Lelong, to whom both are distantly related. Ramirez, who is about 35 years of age, became enamoured of Refugia, and two weeks ago asked her to marry him. When she refused he beat her and blackened one of her eyes, which tended to widen the breach between them. Seeing his love was slighted, he turned his attention to Maria, and yesterday he tendered her his hand in marriage. She also rejected him and he then swore he would kill the whole outfit, as well as himself. He went away, but returned about half-past eight o'clock and, without a word of warning, walked into the house and, opening the door of the room in which Maria was sitting, commenced shooting at her with a small pistol. The first shot missed its aim, but the second and third took effect in her right arm, above and below the elbow. The woman shrieked for help and roused the neighbors, who ran to the house. Hearing them coming, Ramirez ran into the rear of the house and hid behind a pile of grape-vine stumps, with a pistol in each hand, that in the right being a "bull-dog" and that in the left being an old Colt cap and ball pistol. Just at the time the shots were fired, Mr. F. A. Pooley, the Spring-street coal and wood merchant, was putting up his team at his home near by, and he, accompanied by one of his employees named Walters, ran over to the scene. Both men, unarmed and without a light, proceeded to look for Ramirez in the yard. The first intimation received of his presence was the firing of three shots simultaneously from the "bull-dog" at Walters, who was the nearest to him, one of them passing close to Pooley's head. Nothing daunted, however, Pooley picked up a rock and, hurling it at the fellow, had the satisfaction of seeing him drop as if struck on the head. Walters then jumped at him, but Ramirez turned and pointed the Colt's pistol at him. Just as he was about to fire, however, Pooley kicked the gun out of his hand, and it exploded in the air. The prisoner then placed the "bulldog" to his own head and fired, the bullet entering his left ear. His captors then jumped on him and held his arms down, while one of the neighbors rang up the police from the City Gardens. In the meantime Ramirez begged his captors to shoot him and put him out of his misery, but on learning that his victim, Maria, was not dead he did not appear so anxious to die himself. He was taken to the police station in the patrol wagon, and Dr. Morrison attended to his injuries. Dr. Wing went down to attend to Maria de Green, and found her wounds to be painful flesh wounds only, the bullets in both cases having gone right through the arm without severing any arteries. In neither case is any fatal result anticipated, and at midnight both parties were resting tranquilly.

F. M. Garrett's Statement.

EDITORS HERALD: I exceedingly regret to read in your paper this morning statements concerning myself and family that are so at variance with the truth that it becomes my duty to place before you the facts and kindly ask you to make the corrections. It is true I placed my daughter Malia in the hands of Mrs. Watson, not that she was ever suspicioned or accused of not being virtuous, but as a guard that she would remain so. The letter I wrote to her was a letter of warning and you are at liberty to publish its contents at length and I am willing to stand or fall by the opinion of a just people.

It is not true that I had two sisters in my house for immoral purposes; they having come to my house homeless and motherless I let them remain over night and on the next day called on Mrs. Watson and asked her to take charge of them, stating at the same time it did not look well for me to keep them in my house, alone as I was. Mrs. Watson took them, as requested, and the last I heard of them they were under her care, they having remained with me one night before going to Mrs. Watson's. Last December, while living on Hill street, my time was wholly occupied at the office of Superintendent of Streets. My two daughters being at home, my eldest daughter, Malia, made requests on me that I should get some girl to remain in the house as company, and about the 1st of February I took Miss Nettie Keys to my house as one of the family for company. She proved to be a very acceptable companion and company for my children, until some time in March, when Mr. Edgecomb poisoned Miss Malia against Miss Nettie, and also poisoned Miss Nettie against Miss Malia. As soon as I understood that Mr. Edgecomb was causing trouble, I sent Miss Nettie home, and made a request that Edgecomb cease his visits to my house. While Miss Nettie was in my house she occupied the same bed with my daughter, while I slept most of the time with my little Ella. Miss Nettie returned home as pure and virtuous as she came, and it is a pleasure for me to say I am satisfied she was, and is yet, a virtuous and respectable lady, and was so treated while under my roof and care.

Now for the young lady and the letter that fell into Chief Burns' hands. Having been slightly acquainted with the young lady referred to, who seemed to be homeless and worthy, I told her, when last at my house, that whenever she was out of work or really in need, that when in my power I would assist her; further, any time when out of work she was welcome at my house, as a home to go and come as she pleased. I missed the young lady for some time, when I received the letter herein closed*. Whereupon I communicated to her that she was welcome and that she could come at her pleasure; that it was unnecessary for me to meet her at the depot, as she could take the cars and come to the house. I demand the production of the letter, that it may no longer remain a secret, for such it never was intended. It is just such a letter, with just such intentions, as I pray some kind-hearted person may write to my children should they ever be placed in a like condition as the young lady who has, as I believe, innocently of doing any one a wrong, caused this reply. The other lady who is accused of being my mistress is in the city, and in due time will more forcibly than I can, explain matters, she, too, having been a companion of my daughter, at my daughter's own solicitation, and occupying the same room and bed. There are other malicious expressions contained in the article referred to, but the public will soon know the truth, which will vindicate me, unless they blame me for not commiting murder before this. Respectfully,
F. M. GARRETT.

Los Angeles, July 20.

*ARTESIA, MAY 17, 1889.—DEAR SIR: I don't know as this will reach you, but if so, will say that I think I shall accept the offer you made me some time ago. I have looked the city over and over again, and the country also, to find work, but cannot do so. Would like to come and work for you awhile, if you still wish it, as I should. Please write as soon as you get this, and let me know if I am to come, and if so what day you can meet me at the Southern Pacific depot.
Yours, VIOLA ELAM.

The letter in Chief Burns' hands reads as follows:

MY DEAR VIOLA: I received your letter of date 11th inst. last evening. I am sorry you have met with such unfavorable results. I know how unpleasant and distressing it is; however, with you there remains some consolation—you have a friend here whose house is open to you as a home. You say you think you will accept my offer I made some time ago, "to work for me for a while." You must have misunderstood me, as I never asked you to work for me. What I did say, or meant to say, was that you could consider my house your home; that you was welcome. When you receive this write and let me know when you will start and the time the train is due, and I will be at the old S. P. depot to meet you; but have them take your trunk to the new depot; or, if it suits you, you can start at once. Get off at the old S. P. depot, and take the two-horse car and get off at Eighth and Spring streets, and come direct to my house. Be careful and do not get on the mule car, as that runs out Fort and Sixth streets. Don't worry, or let any one impose on you. Now, good by, dear, hoping this may find you well and that I may see you soon. I remain, as ever, your friend,
F. M. GARRETT.

SCOTT'S CHARACTER.

The Defense Making Every Effort to Make It Good.

Yesterday, in Department 6 of the Superior Court, Judge McKinley presiding, was all taken up with the trial of Charles Scott for the murder of French Anna. The defense put a number of witnesses on the stand to show that Scott's general reputation was good. Several very reputable people testified that Scott was a peaceable, industrious man. The theory of the defense is well outlined in the testimony they have introduced. They have shown that the woman threatened to kill Scott. The theory is that Anna Le Brun shot Scott and then herself. All the evidence is in, excepting Scott's own. He will be put on in his own behalf on Monday. His statements will be very much in line, of course, with what he said when he recovered consciousness. He will swear he did not do the shooting, and that he did not know who did. It will be hard to make out a case against him.

On being taken back to the County Jail by Deputy Sheriff Peter Reel, it was found that he had been supplied with whiskey in a surreptitious manner whilst in the court-room, and when searched by Captain Darcy two flasks of the liquor were discovered hidden in his underclothing. Each of the bottles contained about a pint of whiskey and bore a label with the address of "J. Mulberry, Far West saloon, 15 Requena street." Captain Darcy is determined to stamp out the introduction of foreign matters into the jail, and an official investigation will follow.

IRRIGATION.

Maj. E. W. Jones' Report to the State Board of Trade.

LOS ANGELES COUNTY WATERS.

A Full and Interesting Account of This Important Matter Well Presented.

The following report on irrigation in Los Angeles county, including Orange county, was prepared by Major E. W. Jones, President of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and read by him before the Committee of the State Board of Trade at a meeting in San Francisco on July 14, 1889:

The subject of irrigation in Los Angeles and Orange counties is an extensive and complicated one. The number of ditches runs up into the hundreds, and that of systems and sub-systems, companies and associations, to several scores. The length of the ditches, too, is many hundreds of miles, irrigating many varieties of soil and crops. The area of actually irrigated lands in the counties it is difficult to determine with close accuracy. The report of the State Engineer for 1888—Part 2—gives the acreage obtained by that officer, if I understand it, as about 85,000 acres. But he was unable to obtain the amount under a number of systems and with many small irrigators. Under some of the other systems, he has only the acreage of 1885 or 1886, and he reports only three lands which are irrigated throughout the season. All this was owing to the failure of the appropriation for the work. Allowing for these omissions as well as for the extraordinary amount of new land which, during the past season, has been planted to fruit and other crops requiring the use of water during the dry season, we may estimate the actual number of acres in Los Angeles and Orange counties, which will be more or less irrigated in this season of 1889, to be in the vicinity of 150,000.

The season just passed has been the most remarkable in respect to tree-planting ever known in these counties. Very early in the season all the local nurseries were depleted of their desirable trees, especially of the citrus class and others that require more or less irrigation. The increase in Pomona and vicinity alone has been somewhere in the neighborhood of 5,000 acres; in Whittier and vicinity about 2,000 acres, and on the Santa Anita Rancho more than 1,500 acres. There has been also a great quantity of land which was sold and resold, or cut up into lots during the boom years, which has had its neglected orchards and vineyards restored and is again cultivated ground. A large increase in other quarters is reported, and there has been some falling off in a few. I have, in this matter, assumed that the estimate desired is in regard to all land, city and country, to which water from the irrigating streams is applied, either for purposes of utility or beauty.

THE SOURCES

Of the irrigating water supply of these counties are the rivers Los Angeles and San Gabriel, in Los Angeles county, the lower part of the Santa Ana, in Orange county (the upper part being in San Bernardino county), many creeks and small streams whose flow is of short duration, springs and springy lands (called cienegas), and many hundred artesian wells. The rivers, except the Los Angeles, rise in the high mountains, and are practically perennial. It is true their waters disappear in the sands during most of the dry season, soon after debouching from the mountains, but they reappear at intervals all the way to the sea, and can be taken out at almost any point along their channels by simply running ditches into them. The water supply in the rivers alone is sufficient to irrigate all the land of the counties to which water could be advantageously applied, if properly stored and distributed. The volume of the streams in winter is enormous, utterly beyond computation, and but a small proportion of it would need to be saved for use in the dry season. The average summer flow of the San Gabriel river is about 10,000 inches, that of the Los Angeles river 3,750 inches, and that of the lower Santa Ana river 4,000 inches. This estimate is of surface flow only.

During the usual three months of the irrigating season the water is all appropriated. It is not all utilized, however, as much is wasted both by seepage and evaporation in the open, porous earth ditches in which it flows, and much is allowed to run to waste. Two-thirds is lost. The streams whose waters rarely show outside of the mouths of their gorges, except under the influence of considerable rainfall, are capable of furnishing a great quantity of water for storage. In many instances they are the only source of supply for the higher mesa and foothill lands, and are well worth the expense of providing, for these lands yield some of our fruits in the greatest perfection, and they are unquestionably our most healthful and delightful dwelling-places.

A great deal of water is obtained from the springs and springy lands of the counties.

These lands are found all the way from the mountains to the sea, but the greater number of those used for irrigation are situated in the higher plains or at the base of the main range. The most notable instances of these sources of supply are the springs and marshy lands of Pomona, on the eastern border of Los Angeles county, the springs of Santa Anita and San Gabriel, the marsh lands of the Rio Honda and Paso de Bartolo near the center, and those at the head of the Los Angeles river, on the San Fernando plain, near the western line. They furnish many hundred inches of water and are among the most reliable and valuable of our water rights.

The artesian wells of the two counties afford a very large amount of water. Pomona orchards are largely supplied by them; so are those of Santa Anita and the San Gabriel valley, while the lower coast plain has hundreds of such wells irrigating fields of alfalfa, vegetables and most articles of fruit. These wells have an average bore of six inches, depth of 150 feet, and flow of two inches. Not more than one-third of them, however, are flowing; that is about 1,500 in the two counties.

There is promise of the development of great quantities of water by the construction of submerged dams in the gravel-filled channels of the streams. There are several such dams in the county, but I have been unable to get statistics with regard to but one. That was built in the Pacoima, a stream of the northeast corner of the San Fernando basin. The owners claim it to be the largest in the world. It is 600 feet long, with an average depth of sixty feet. It consists of a wall six feet thick, of granite boulders and Portland cement, built up from bedrock and filled against, back and front, with sand and gravel. It developed a subterranean stream 40 feet wide and 16 feet deep. Unfortunately, through some fault in construction, the dam was unable to retain the water, and was used but a few weeks after its completion, last year.

Several sub-irrigating systems have been constructed. They consist of cement pipes of the smaller dimensions, laid at a depth below the deepest plowing, along the line of trees, with a short branch running to each tree. The piping cannot endure much pressure, and requires to be laid nearly level. The ends of the branches are perforated to admit a flow of the water into the earth about the roots of the trees. By a patent process a continuous pipe is laid at the required depth. Sub-irrigation requires much less water, and no surface work but cultivation. It discourages the growth of weeds, and prevents the hardening of the ground about the trees. As at present applied, however, it does not uniformly moisten the earth enclosing the roots, and is not regarded as a complete success.

With regard to the

FACILITIES FOR STORAGE,

There is a difference of opinion among engineers. Some think there are many basins and cañons in the mountains which are adapted to the purpose, and others think these on most streams are wanting. Most, however, agree that the external bench lands furnish abundant opportunities for the construction of reservoirs. The storage of waters in the cañons may be effected by throwing dams, at favorable places, across the mouths of such cañons or basins as have the least wash and afford the largest capacity, and possibly leading the water into them from adjacent streams.

The reservoirs on the bench lands may be constructed by excavations at, usually, much less expense than those in the cañons, and be of much safer character. They would not, however, be able to deliver their waters at so high an elevation, and would leave considerable land to be supplied from other sources. The filling of such reservoirs is effected by piping, fluming or ditching from the upper waters of the streams. There are a number of reservoirs of both kinds, finished and in course of construction of a capacity varying from a few thousand to a billion gallons. One on Mormon creek, in the rim of the San Fernando basin, is more than the latter capacity. Suffice it to say there is no lack of facilities for the storage of water with safety and profit. The first expense, however, is very great, and private enterprise is not ready to undertake it on so large a scale, except in most favorable localities. The waters of the San Gabriel river, brought out upon the higher hill lands of the Azusa or Duarte, would suffice to irrigate all the great valley below, the coast plain beyond and the intervening range of hills to their very tops. The waters of Millard cañon and the Arroyo Seco, stored in the vicinity of the Giddings ranch or the lands of John Brown's sons or other available places, could be made to flow over the San Rafael hills, and those in and adjoining East Los Angeles. So with the San Dimas and the streams of Saw Pit, Santa Anita, Eaton, Tejunga, Pacoima, San Fernando, Mormon creek, Verdugo and Santiago—whose flow in the aggregate is enough to supply all the lands between them and the ocean many times over. Also, over the range, in the hitherto regarded irredeemable desert of the Mojave, where most of the

LAND BELONGS TO THE GOVERNMENT,

And the soil is as rich as lies under the sun, whole townships of the finest raisin grape, fig and deciduous fruit land may be irrigated by the waters of the Mojave, Big and Little Rock creeks, Oak creek, and some others, most of which show surface water only in the rainy season, if those waters are husbanded, as there are abundant facilities for doing.

And in the Newhall region, the Santa Clara, the San Francisquito and the Castac, may be made to vastly increase the productiveness of the valley and the wealth of the county. But the cost of any one of these works would be very great, and capital is worth too large a rate per cent. or has too many risks to run, which the State or General Government is not subjected to, to undertake them.

THE NUMBER OF IRRIGABLE ACRES

In the two counties is about 200,000. That is, that number of acres can be irrigated under the present facilities, if these facilities are utilized to their full capacity. The number of acres of good land which requires irrigation is, south of the mountains, according to the State Engineer's estimate, 460 900. North of the Sierra Madre range, Los Angeles county shares with Kern and San Bernardino in the great Mojave desert, so-called. This desolate region contains many thousand square miles. In these three counties, one half of this is probably arid beyond redemption, one half of the remainder is too rough and mountainous to be valuable for cultivation, but the remainder is mostly highly fertile soil, lying favorably for the application of water.

Of this vast territory, Los Angeles possesses 250 000 acres, which can be made to comfortably sustain a population of 100,000 people. Of a piece with the quarter of a million acres in Los Angeles county are hundreds of thousands of acres of equally favorable lands in San Bernardino and Kern counties.

THE FACILITIES FOR IRRIGATING

This vast tract have never yet been carefully investigated. Our State Legislature has been too niggardly to provide State Engineer Hall with the means for the work. The value of the statistics on the subject of irrigation which Mr. Hall has compiled, and the other information which he furnishes in his report, cannot be over-estimated. It was a great mistake to fail to provide for the officer and the office for the year 1889.

Judge R. M. Widney, a large land owner in that region, states that the lowest summer flow of the Mojave river is about 5,000 inches. The average flow for six months in the year, the winter and spring months, is 20,000 to 30,000 inches; during May, June and July more than 10,000, and for the rest of the season more than 5,000 inches. Of this, the Hesperia Land and Water Company has filed a claim on 5,000 inches. The Hesperia company irrigates about 300 acres of land, and is flooding 1,500 acres for the purpose of preparing it for cultivation with the use of less water than it would otherwise require. The remainder, properly cared for, will redeem a half a million acres of now absolute desert, and make it as rich and blooming as the plains of Babylon thirty centuries ago.

SITES FOR STORAGE RESERVOIRS

Are abundant. The land is mostly Government land, and the profits thereon would pay for enormous and elaborate works. Big and Little Rock creeks, which debouch upon the desert plain at a higher elevation, west of the Mojave river, are wholly within Los Angeles county. Their flow in winter is thousands of inches, and in summer is sufficient, as at present handled, to irrigate several hundred acres. Facilities for storage are as abundant on those creeks as on the Mojave. The land below is still owned by the Government for the most part. The universal testimony is that it is as fertile as the best. It is covered with grass and flowers during several months of the year, and is capable, under irrigation, of producing the most luxuriant and profitable crops.

Artesian well-boring has proved successful in places on the desert, but the expense is, of course, greater than elsewhere. The region is one of the most healthful on the glove. Its hot, dry atmosphere is found congenial by many people. It is especially adapted to the production of certain crops, as the fig and raisin grape. It produces in some places as fine wheat as is raised anywhere. But to become habitable for any more than a few scattered families or small communities, it must have water to save its crops in summer. We have an engineer's report with regard to Little Rock creek. He finds ample winter flow to furnish irrigation water, if stored, for 270,000 acres, allowing one inch to five acres, and estimates the evaporation at sixty-six inches during the year, thirty inches during the months of July, August and September. He finds sites and gives estimates for two reservoirs, the largest one having a capacity of 644,000 000 gallons and to cost $125,000. There is reported from the same locality 800 acres to which water is applied; 200 000 acres irrigable, one-half of which belongs to the Government; value of irrigable land, $50; non-irrigable, $1.25 per acre. There are fourteen miles of ditches and seven artesian wells with an average depth of 340 feet and average flow of 12 inches.

THE COUNTIES OF LOS ANGELES AND ORANGE

Have an area of 4,812 square miles, or 3.079 680 acres. Their population is fully 150,000 souls. Without irrigation, not one-quarter of this number would now be living there, and this in spite of the fact that we produce more than one-half of the corn of the State, almost altogether without irrigation, that we have nearly 90,000 acres of good land that requires no irrigation; that we have very productive oil-fields, and last, but not least, we raise the finest horses in the world.

The irrigated area then is about 150,000 acres, and this is the basis of maintenance for 113,000 people. Theoretically, no increase of this population is warranted without a corresponding increase of irrigated lands. Factories and mineral developments, travel and transportation by land and sea, and the healthfulness of her climate, would add to the population, but the cost of living would be increased in proportion to growth. The homes of the poor would no longer be those of people who control their own destinies, and this would become a rich man's paradise, a thing not to be desired.

Ten years ago the population of the counties was a little over 30,000. Fifteen years ago, the land on which Pasadena now stands was held at $7 per acre. In seven years it was valued and sold in large quantities at $500 to $1,000 per acre. This was for orchards, not city lots—orchards made possible only by a supply of moisture for the roots of the trees during the long arid season of the year. So with the great foothill region along the base of the Sierra Madre range, from Tejunga and Crescenta Cañada on the west, through Altadena, Sierra Madre, Lamanda Park, Santa Anita, Monrovia, Duarte, Azusa, Glendora, Alosta, San Dimas, Lordsburg, the Ontarios, Cucamonga, Rialto, Redlands, and over the San Gorgonio Pass into the desert at Indio, and again at Riverside and Arlington, and places too numerous to mention, the growth has been proportionate to the extent to which irrigation has been carried. The region mentioned was almost worthless, even for grazing purposes, and was as incapable of sustaining a population as the Mojave desert itself. Now visit it and you will find it the most charming region and the most valuable land in all California, or in the United States for that matter. This region is covered with a network of conduits for the water obtained from the mountains. In every direction, either above or below the surface, like a spider's web, the ditches, flumes and pipes are leading the life-giving fluid. It is for the most part above the region of wells, so that the water for all purposes has to be brought in. Where no provision has been made for supplying a locality from running streams, a resort is made to other methods. The mountains are bored and tunneled for the seepage and spring-water, wet places in the coves and gulches are undermined, springs are cleaned out, and reservoirs of various sizes constructed to increase and store the flow. Pipes are laid for long distances into the cañons to bring the trickling streams from their hiding-places to the light and usefulness. Ingenuity and experience as well as capital are required to find many of these waters. Much money has been expended to little purpose in such work. But a great many inches of flow have been obtained in this way—much more than enough to compensate for all the outlay in this direction.

In the ranges of hills between the mountains and ocean, water has been and is being developed in the same way. But the difference in the soil and the moisture borne to them on the ocean breeze renders less water necessary, and the same enterprise in obtaining it has not been displayed. The Whittier colony is a notable exception to this rule as to enterprise, though not as to need of irrigation.

The last report of the State Engineer gives the figures forover 900 miles of irrigation conduits in these counties. His estimates, however, are incomplete, as he himself states, owing to lack of provisions for the prosecution of the work. This year, the office of State Engineer being abolished, the work has not been prosecuted, and we have to rely upon such data as we can procure. There are probably nearer 1,500 miles of such conduits in our counties. The character of these conduits is continually changing. Flumes are being substituted for earth ditches, and cement or iron pipes for both. There are now nearly, or quite, 400 miles of underground conduits in the counties. Every system and character of irrigation is exemplified here, from the ancient methods of the Indians and Mexicans to the most improved modern systems, including sub-irrigation, flooding the land, channels and basins, slow streams and deep welling, quick, full and frequent flow; the use of one inch to 10 acres, and of an inch to one acre (the inch flow giving 12,560 gallons per day, equal to four and a half inches of rainfall on one acre in the 100 days of the irrigating season), and so on ad infinitum. All phases of the subject may be found treated here.

LITERATURE UPON THE SUBJECT,

Maps or plans, written or printed rules and regulations for the governance of irrigation systems have very little existence. In most instances the value of the water rights and the appurtenances is divided into shares, and these are owned by each irrigator in proportion to the number of acres he wishes to irrigate. He pays his share of the expenses and takes his share of the water in his turn, which is settled by agreement at the beginning of the irrigating season. The number of irrigations is from one to three or four a month, according to the crop, the nature of the soil, the moisture otherwise furnished, the supply of water, or the notion of the irrigator. The amount of water supplied depends upon the same contingencies. The water is measured by inches or heads, one inch being the amount that will flow through an inch-square orifice under four-inch pressure. The head, nominally, is 100 inches. The run is for any number of hours and, to agreement, usually from twelve to twenty-four. The irrigating season is ordinarily about three months—those of July, August and September.

A man is employed to turn the water to each irrigator as his time comes. This man is called a "zanjero" as the ditch in Spanish is called "zanja." He receives from $1 to $1.50 per day for the season. The cost per acre is from 30 cents to $1.50 for the year, which covers all expenses. Many of the open ditches are injured during the rainy season and a great deal of ditch repairing is required at the beginning of the dry season. The pipe systems escape this and the drawbacks which attend the old crude methods of the first settlers.

The average rainfall of the region is about twelve inches, running from a light precipitation near the coast to a copious one in the mountains and foothills, though different parts of both localities are more or less differently favored. There have been no drouths for ten years, but drouths can have no such effect upon the region as formerly. The people know so well how to use and husband the moisture that no material damage could be done to the country by a lack of rainfall that did not continue for several seasons. We have no general failure of crops, and every year makes assurance doubly sure that it can never occur again. We hear of the failure of crops three years out of five in the eastern States. Such disasters do not occur in an irrigated country. Here the farmer's fortune is entirely under his control. There "the act of Providence" keeps his nose to the grindstone, and finally closes him out and sends him west or to the poorhouse. The news comes to me of a rural population, which I know well, which is almost bankrupt, a result of five years of successive drouths. Its river water, stored and distributed, would have made it rich beyond calculation. Our unirrigated land is, as a rule, more worthless than theirs; our irrigated land is worth ten times as much, it is safe to say. The value, of course, lies in the water.

THE AVERAGE VALUE

Of the product of unirrigated land is not more than one tenth that of irrigated. The difference in the variety of crops possible to raise, and in the capacity of the two kinds of land to sustain population, is quite as great. The improvement in the character of the population is as marked as in numbers; intelligence and energy distinguish the new occupants of this country from the old

With regard to the practical knowledge of irrigation, there is probably no field in the world where it is more exhaustive than in these two counties. It has been applied here for more than a hundred years, and has gradually grown from the simple method of the Spanish-American settlers to the most elaborate of modern systems.

These counties have, probably, more land under actual irrigation, and a greater variety of crops thus cultivated, than all the rest of the United States. The field is so favorable for examination, compared with others, that more can be shown within a given time than in any other region, ten times over; in fact, no such knowledge of the subject can be gained by visiting all the other localities as by examining this one comparatively small section of country.

It is hoped that the Senate Committee on Arid Lands will take advantage of the opportunity here offered to acquaint themselves with the practice and results of irrigation.

The opinions and conclusions here offered are the result of no hasty consideration of the subject, though the time allowed has not permitted the preparation of an elaborate report. As many authorities as possible for the statements here given have been consulted. It is regretted that some of the best in our counties have not been reached through repeated efforts were made to do so. DISEASES OF FEMALES.

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

We have introduced the COMPOUND OXYGEN TREATMENT with our systems of practice in the cure of Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption Dyspepsia, Insomnia, Sore Throat, Catarrh Rheumatism and Nervous Prostration, when only the most improved methods are employe in all female complaints.

As is well known, oxygen is the life-giving principle in the air we breathe and ozone in the air imparts that happy and buoyant feeling after thunderstorms. Persons often require more oxygen than is in the air around them, and cause doors and windows to be opened, tear off collars, loosen the waist, and call for a fan to displace the stifling and bring fresher air or more oxygen. Traveling is done mainly to resorts where the air contains more oxygen, and mountains are ascended to breathe the ozone, which is light and ascends from the earth.

Oxygen and ozone are gases, and must be stored up and used by inhaling them. Our apparatus for storing and having those gases, compounded with other suitable agents, is perfect; and, although they are not a cure-all, yet they are undoubtedly the greatest invention made in the last 20 years in any department of medicine, and the results are truly wonderful.

Oxygen acts by purifying the blood, thereby increases the circulation, promotes absorption, improves digestion and assimilation, increases the capability of the lungs, and acts as a gentle stimulant to the nervous system.

The London, England, Lancet, very truthfully says: "The Compound Oxygen treatment is the greatest discovery of the Nineteenth Century." Clergymen, statesmen, lawyers, doctors, and all classes indiscriminately, wherever it is introduced, both use and recommend it.

The testimonials given below are very fair samples as to the time required for effecting cures in these troublesome diseases:

Dr. Williams—DEAR SIR: I am happy to say that the cure you effected in me for a severe case of throat disease has proved to be permanent. For over a year I was troubled with post-nasal catarrh and granulated throat disease, and had done so much for it that I had but little hopes of ever being cured, when I first went to you, but you gave me such positive assurance that you could cure me that I began your treatment, and in four months from that time you discharged me as cured, and I am happy to say the cure was a permanent thing in every particular up to the present time, which is now over a year. Yours very truly,

MRS. LUCY H. TRASK,
809 South Olive street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Dr. M. Hilton Williams—DEAR SIR: I have been contemplating for some time past making a statement of my case and the benefit I have derived from your treatment, remembering how glad I would have been could I have seen something of the kind from a person in the city, to whom I could have referred, when first came to Los Angeles from my home in New York State.

I had been suffering for several years with what various physicians in the East pronounced "chronic ulcerated laryngitis." I spent considerable time at the Clifton Sanitarium, and employed the best medical skill I could find, all without any permanent benefit, and as a last resort our family physician recommended Los Angeles. For a time I improved, and then I began to go backward and all my former symptoms returned.

Through a medial friend I was induced to try your treatment. I became very much discouraged at times, but persevered, as I felt almost desperate and knew of nothing else to turn to. My throat trouble being aggravated by a serious stomach difficulty, made it very obstinate to deal with, but at last, after persevering for a time with your remedies, I consider I am permanently cured. If this will be of any value to you, you are at perfect liberty to use it; also to refer anyone to my mother, my husband or myself. Very truly yours,

MRS. J. D. WILEY,

SATURDAY, JULY 20, 1889.

Leave the City Free.

If we had a Council that could get two ideas into its head, the outfall sewer question would be solved at once on sensible principles. But, like the Irishman's pig, they have got headed towards Kinsale, when reason, common sense and interest requires them to go to Cork. Indeed, they have so persistently set themselves upon the Ballona route, that they are deliberately about to commit one of the most incomprehensible and expensive follies ever committed by a deliberative body, rather than do a reasonable and a wise thing. It is no small matter to subject the taxpayers of this city to the fruitless waste of between four and five hundred thousand dollars for a work which will carry the sewage to land where it is not wanted, and which will meet with the impediment of protracted litigation and the indignation of neighboring communities.

There is nothing in the law or the charter which requires the city to commit itself to any particular route to the sea, yet the Council have so framed the ordinance for the issuance of bonds that they will only be available for the Ballona route. This is the most asinine feature of the whole business. The city will be in a straitjacket. It will be able to move only in the direction mentioned, even although it should be shown afterwards that to do so would be ruinous, and to go by another route would be of inestimable advantage to the work and the city. The Council ties up the city to the Ballona route, without having obtained a foot of the right of way. A great deal has been said about having secured the right of way as far as the Southern Pacific railroad goes. But the railroad company has not granted the city the right of way for the outfall sewer, and what is more, it will not grant it. Well, in what condition will the city find itself, after the bonds have been issued, with this as the only route upon which they can be used? It will have to pay fancy prices for every acre of land through which it passes, or enter upon a course of litigation to condemn that will last for years. In the meantime, the city will be compelled to seek another outlet at whatever cost, or find the health of the city placed in constant jeopardy.

Reconsider your ordinance, gentlemen of the Council, and omit mention of any specific route for the outfall sewer. If you do not do that you will commit the most egregious error of your administration. We know that you have been advised by the City Attorney that the route must be mentioned and fixed in the ordinance; but he gives you no reasons of law or letter for it. It is a mere question of opinion with him. Against his judgment and his knowledge of law and legal construction, we place the mature opinion of such men as A. Glassell, Stephen M. White, and others of that rank in the profession, that the city is not required to designate in the ordinance the route of the outfall sewer in order to legalize the bonds.

It would doubtless be very proper in the general plan to provide for carrying a portion of the sewage in the direction of the Ballona. There is a large area of land this side of the Cienega rancho which for eight months in the year would be benefited by the sewage. But the great bulk of the city sewage should be carried in the direction of the Los Angeles river. The present outfall near Vernon should be enlarged and continued through the sandy and porous lands below and east of Vernon. At whatever point it would be deemed necessary to reach the river, a sufficient fall could be had for that purpose. During the four winter, or non-irrigating months, the surplus sewage, carrying with it of course, a great amount of rain water, could be discharged into the river, whilst, during eight months of the year every drop of it would be required to irrigate the thin lands through which it would pass.

If the Council desires to do the right thing by the people of this city and the irrigators beyond its bounds, they will leave the question of route entirely out of the ordinance.

Have We a Schildah and Teterow Council?

We have made such rapid progress in doing nothing in our municipal affairs of late that we are strongly reminded of the exploits of certain famous legislative bodies in Germany, in the brave days of old. Schildah was a celebrated municipality in the Germanic body politic. It was eternally doing wise things that did not seem to amount to much. Thus, on a certain occasion, the good burghers of Schildah concluded to build a court house. The work was done satisfactorily, with one exception. The architect neglected to provide any windows; and, consequently, the Schildah selectmen had to meet and pass their ordinances in the dark. As this proved to be a great inconvenience, the wise men in authority made proclamation that the citizens were to assemble on the first sunny day with bags, catch the sunshine and let it loose amongst the worse than Cimmerian darkness of the chamber in which the municipal Solons were compelled by law to assemble. History does not inform us that the situation was much improved by this novel and makeshift process.

But this contrivance of more than earthly wisdom by no means exhausted the intellectual resources of the men of Schildah. They were very much attached to their town bell. It had rung in so many births and rung out so many deaths that every inhabitant of Schildah had a warm place in his heart for the old bell. Once upon a time rumors of war invaded the quiet precincts of the town, and every one at once thought of the bell, and the Councilmen equally with their fellow burghers were interested in having it put in a place of safety. The deliberations anent the matter were long and earnest. Finally it was resolved that the bell should be sunk in the river. Once in the midst of that stream, a dreadful doubt possessed the custodians of the bell. They could sink it in the stream, but how should they be able to find it again? The Burgomaster solved the difficulty in an instant by a happy inspiration. He made the sign of the cross on the waters, knowing that, when the alarms of war were over, this precious sign of salvation would still be fixed on the bosom of the running stream.

Teterow, another German town, was also famous for its happy devices of more than human wit. The town authorities had dug a deep well which was to yield the people an abundant supply of crystal water, drawn in old oaken buckets which should hang in the well. Pleased with their work, they determined to know its depth by actual measurement. But how to measure it was the question? It was finally decided that the Burgomaster should suspend himself from the cross-beam; and that the Councilmen, in the order of their seniority, should clamber over him and grab him by the heels, and that the process should be repeated until the bottom of the well was reached. The programme was carried out very fairly until six of his associates were hanging on the heels of the Burgomaster, when his patience gave out. 'Hold on," he cried, "if I have to support so many men by my unaided muscles, I must spit on my hands," and he promptly let go of the cross-beam for that purpose, with a result which the good Burgomaster had never dreamed of. And great was the outcry and labor to rescue the self-sacrificing officials, and the scheme of measuring that well was incontinently abandoned.

It was at Teterow also that the brilliant device for cropping the grass on the ramparts of the town was developed. In those days of war and war's alarums it was the custom to have walled towns. The officials happened to notice that there was a luxuriant growth of grass on the town wall. It was at once voted that it would be a crime to allow this to go to waste. The ingenious plan of raising a cow to eat the grass was devised, but unfortunately the hoisting tackle was placed around the animal's neck. When half way up the cow's tongue hung out its full length and distilled a plentiful stream of moisture. "Ah," said the happy burghers, "we shall not be obliged to hoist water for a cow like that." Unfortunately for the auspice, when the top of the wall was reached the cow was dead.

Is Los Angeles a modern edition of Schildah and Teterow? We have already had one election called for issuing school and sewer bonds, and the work has had to be done over again through blundering in the form of the ordinance. Without the right of way having been obtained, the voters will again be called upon to vote for a stipulated route for an outfall sewer to the sea. In other words, they will be asked to buy a pig in a poke. With confessedly grossly inadequate common school facilities, they will be asked to vote $90,000 for a High School, and this High School is to be located at the corner of Castelar and Sand streets, in an obscure quarter of the city, and away from all convenience of access, on a sort of a cut-off switch of a single horse railway! With tens of thousands of acres of dry and porous soil, which would be enriched by the sewage, it is proposed to carry it through a swamp to the ocean, where it will pollute the waters of two of the most promising watering places in America.

And then the interminable police muddle! The town councils of Schildah and Teterow would have found it hard indeed to have created a more stupid and inexplicable mess than this.

Certainly Los Angeles is unhappy and to be pitied in the direction which is being given to her affairs. The injury resulting to the city therefrom is simply incalculable.

IS THE Charter a dead letter to this administration for some purposes and a live instrument for others? Section 91 reads: "The Mayor and four citizens, to be appointed by the Council, (not more than two of whom shall be members of the same political party, and who shall serve without compensation), shall constitute the Board of Police Commissioners of the city." The Council cannot plead that it does not know what the meaning of that provision is. It knew its meaning as far as the Republican party is concerned, but ignored it in its application to the Democratic party. By appointing two Republicans it gave proper interpretation to it in favor of its own party. Now, we demand that it do the same as regards the Democratic party. There are only two political parties, and no one pretends that the people are otherwise divided. The "Americans" and the Prohibitionists are in no sense a party. They are a mere "scattering" side issue. Now, we demand that the Democratic party shall be represented in the Board of Police Commissioners by two Democrats. We don't want mere fairweather Democrats; we want representative members who are known and acknowledged as such by the rank and file of the party. If there is force in the letter and intent of the charter for the Republican party, there should be equal force in it for the Democratic party. The Democratic party is utterly ignored in the make-up of the Board—it has no representative upon it, and the Board, as now constituted, is a mere Republican machine, in direct violation of the spirit and letter of the section we have quoted. As the organ of the Democracy of this city, we call upon the Council to appoint, at its next meeting, two Democratic Police Commissioners. Will it do so? If not, we shall put some very serious questions to the Council which it will be awkward for it to answer.

EASTERN HAPPENINGS.

Colored Excursionists Come to Grief.

SERIOUS STEAMBOAT DISASTER

The Flood in West Virginia—Losses Effected By Wind and Lightning.

[Associated Press Dispatches to the HERALD.]

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 20.—The steamer St. Nicholas, with 200 colored excursionists on board, ran into a closed draw bridge over St. Augustine creek, four miles south of Savannah, tonight, demolishing the forward part of the steamer, killing two women, and injuring twenty-eight men and women, some of whom will die. Captain Boulineau, who commanded the steamer, said the engines were reversed and backing when the crash came. The forward decks were crowded. The upper deck was carried away, and the pilot-house and hurricane deck crashed down on the mass of people, burying them beneath its weight. One of the dead was a colored cook and the other an unknown young woman.

TIMBER CLAIMS.

A New Ruling on the Timber Culture Lands.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Secretary Noble today, in a letter to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, modified in a very important particular the application of the rule as to the time of certain timber culture cases. The Timber Culture act of June 14, 1878, provides that any person who shall plant, protect and keep in a healthy growing condition, for eight years, ten acres of timber in any quarter section of any of the public lands of the United States, shall be entitled to a patent at the expiration of said eight years, on making proof, etc., but "no final certificate shall be given or patent issued until the expiration of eight years from the date of entry."

Land Commissioner McFarland, in a circular of instructions to Registers and Receivers, dated February 1, 1882, held that half the trees must actually have been growing five years and the remaining half four years, to conform to the terms of the act. This interpretation was sustained in a subsequent decision, which held that the preparation of the land and the planting of the trees were acts of cultivation, and that the time actually so employed should be computed as part of the eight years required in timber culture cases; and as the act provided for three years' cultivation of the land before the trees could be planted, the effect of the ruling was to compute the period of cultivation from the date of entry.

On June 27, 1887, Commissioner Sparks, in a circular to Registers and Receivers, directed that "in computing the period of cultivation, the time runs from the date when the total number of trees, seeds or cuttings required by the act were planted," and final proofs of entry-men not having complied with this rule were rejected.

Secretary Noble, in his letter today to the Commissioner, sustains the ruling made by Commissioner Sparks, but says: "Inasmuch as the Department from the time of the passage of the bill up to June 27, 1887, erroneously construed the true spirit and intent of the act, and in pursuance thereof numerous entries have been made under the law as promulgated, amounting to some 2,500 or more, such entries should be protected under the construction thus given the act, giving such construction all the force and effect of the law. Were it not so, great wrong and inconvenience would result."

The Secretary, therefore, directs that the rule in the case of Henry Hooper in point, be so modified as to hold all entries made under the act as construed from February 1, 1882, to June 27, 1887, should pass to patent so, and that all entries made after the announcement of that doctrine, should be governed by the principles therein enunciated.

FLOOD AND LIGHTNING.

Particulars of the West Virginia Deluge and Other Storms.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 20.—An estimate can hardly yet be formed of the great calamity that has swept over the Little Kenawha valley, but enough is known to mark it as the most destructive in life and property that ever occurred in West Virginia. The scene of the greatest disaster was on Pond creek, Jackson county, and Tucker creek, Wirt county. Pond creek rose twenty-five feet in an hour from the cloud-burst. The water spread from hill to hill and carried all before it. Four men took refuge in the Thomas mill. The mill was washed away, and Edward Boss was drowned. Thomas Black and his newly wedded wife were washed from their home and perished. Thomas Hughes, his wife and four children fled from their home, but the water overtook them, and none escaped but Hughes. On Tucker creek seven lives are reported lost, but no definite information can be obtained. The loss to property is immense, and will run up in the millions.

A KANSAS STORM.

KANSAS CITY, July 20.—A heavy rainstorm, accompanied by high winds, prevailed in northwestern Kansas today. At Stockton the wind blew down several light frame houses, and blew in the glass fronts of several stores. No lives were lost. Several washouts are reported as having occurred on the central branch of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe near Atchison. The storm damaged small grain crops considerably.

LIGHTNING'S WORK.

STURGIS, Dak., July 20.—Lightning struck the residence of Samuel Layster in Whitewood last night during a heavy storm. A son of Layster, aged 22 years, was instantly killed. The house caught fire and was totally consumed along with all the household effects. A young child was severely shocked, but is expected to recover. A bolt descended at Fort Mead and wrecked a school house occupied by the Government. Several head of stock were also killed on the ranges near here.

CHAPMAN'S TURN NOW.

Litigation in a Famous Case Renewed—The Tables Turned.

CHICAGO, July 20.—The noted case of the United States Express Company vs. Herman B. Chapman, formerly their agent at La Salle, Ill., was brought to the recollection of the public again today by the institution of a suit by Chapman's attorney in behalf of his client, against the Express Company, claiming damages for $50,000 for false imprisonment for three years. In 1878 Chapman was charged with the delivery of a $14,000 package which never reached its destination. Chapman claimed that he was robbed of the package, but the Company insisted that he had stolen it. Years of litigation followed. Chapman was acquitted of the charge of theft, but subsequently was convicted of perjury and sent to the penitentiary for seven years. Meanwhile, the company had begun a civil suit against him, and in 1880 obtained a verdict in the Federal Court for $14,000 and costs. A special writ of capias ad satisfaciendum was sued out. Armed with this writ, a United States Marshal arrested Chapman on his release from Joliet in 1884, and he was brought to Chicago and lodged in the debtors' department of the jail. The express company was determined to make an example of Chapman, and paid his board weekly for three years. They would doubtless have kept him incarcerated for life, but in 1887 the Legislature of Illinois passed a law providing that persons held on capiases ad satisfaciendum should not be held longer than six months after turning over all their property not exempt, to their creditors. This law went into effect July 1, 1887, and that day Chapman was released. In the meantime his attorney had appealed to the United States Supreme Court, and yesterday that body handed down a decision setting aside the judgment of the lower court upon which the capias had been issued. Chapman naturally claims that the three years spent in the County Jail were years of false imprisonment, and wants damages for $50,000.

THE NATION'S WARDS.

A New Reservation Needed for Geronimo's Band.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—For several months the War Department officials have had under consideration the proposed removal of about 400 Apaches, including Geronimo's band, and a number of Indians who served in the United States army as scouts in the campaigns against Geronimo. They are at present located at Mount Vernon barracks, about thirty miles north of Mobile, Ala. They were first taken to Fort Augustine, Florida, where the climate told severely upon them, and it was found necessary to send some of the children to school at Carlisle, Pa. It is conceded that their present location, although more suitable than Florida, is not conducive to the welfare of the Indians who were born and brought up in the mountainous regions of New Mexico; so that suggestions of a change have been readily listened to by the authorities.

The Indian Rights Association and the Massachusetts Indian Association have offered to purchase the land necessary to accommodate the Indians, if the Government will select the site and authorize the change. The War Department officials are now considering the subject.

General Howard has suggested, after inspecting the Indians at Mount Vernon, that the hill country of Alabama, Georgia or North Carolina would be better suited to the Apaches than any land on the seaboard.

The place for them which meets with the most favor is the Cherokee Reservation, on the Smoky Mountains, on the line between North Carolina and Tennessee. It is understood that the Cherokees are willing to sell enough of their land to accommodate the Apaches, and it is probable that the authorities will consent to remove them there after the Indian Rights Association have obtained a title to the land. Under proper conditions, Captain Bourke expresses the belief that the Apaches can be made self-sustaining and law-abiding in three years.

SIOUX CHIEFS BACKING DOWN.

CHEYENNE RIVER AGENCY, Dak. July 20.—Affairs at this agency look decidedly more favorable for success. The half-bloods are changing sides almost in a body, and are now supporting the bill. The Captain and several members of the police force signed today. White Swan, Four Bears, Charger and other chiefs have become doubtful as to the strength of their organization and show signs of weakening. In the council this afternoon, instead of the flat-footed opposition hitherto met, there was an evident desire to find a way in which to back down from their former position and still retain their influence with their bands.

Not Eating Gophers.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 20.—A Winnipeg special says a story originating at Grafton, Dak., that settlers in the Canadian Northwest had been reduced to eating field mice and gophers, is simply a lie. The chances are for two-thirds of a crop, and there is no destitution anywhere.

Extensive Washouts.

TUCSON, July 20.—Extensive washouts are reported between Casa Grande and Pichacho, forty miles west. A number of trains are delayed.

BLYTHE'S MILLIONS.

The Missing Will Found in Los Angeles.

FLORENCE TO GET THE FORTUNE

The Document Believed to be Genuine—Some Strange Developments.

[Associated Press Dispatches to the HERALD.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—An Oakland evening paper states that Attorney Hart, one of the counsel for Florence Blythe, claims to have found Blythe's missing will in Los Angeles, and that it bequeathes the estate, now valued at $4,000,000, to Florence, his illegitimate daughter, with the exception of $100,000 in legacies. Hart is expected to return from Los Angeles Monday.

THE REPORT CORROBORATED.

[Mr. W. H. Hart, the San Francisco attorney referred to in the above dispatch, was interviewed at the Nadeau hotel last night by a HERALD reporter, to whom he made the following statement:

"I believe I have found Blythe's missing will, but cannot say anything about it positively, except that I have been in consultation with two attorneys tonight, who represent some very reliable people here, and their clients claim to have it in their possession. I was shown a copy, which was so like the will Blythe made about a month before his death as to leave very little doubt in my mind as to its authenticity, and I feel certain that if these people have not got the original, which I hope to be able to see tomorrow, they know where it is, and I shall be able to obtain it through them.

"No, they do not ask any reward for it; but my impression is that they were in league with the woman, and would have kept it out of sight had the decision in the Sharon case not been reversed. As it is, they intend to do the child, Florence, justice, and I feel confident of success.

"As I said before, not having seen the original document, I am not prepared to say anything about its contents.

"An incident of great importance to my cause occurred tonight to further enhance the pleasure of my trip to this city, and that was the accidental discovery of Miss McLellan, the young lady who taught Florence in Europe, about six years ago. I have hunted her for the past five years without encouragement, but just as I was about to give her up as lost, I heard of her, and saw her father just about an hour ago."]

SANTA ROSA, July 20.—A cream tartar factory is soon to be started here, buildings now being erected for that purpose. The cream of tartar will be made from grape pumice obtained from the neighboring wineries.

While at Vallejo this morning the prisoners escaped from the car, but were found, after a few hours' search, hidden under a barn.

Washington Territory Wirings.

SEATTLE, W. T., July 20.—Day's saw mill, near Snohomish Junction, burned yesterday; loss, $25,000.

PORT TOWNSEND, W. T., July 20.—The American ship Lucy A. Nickles, thirty-five days from Yokohama, with over 2,000 tons of tea in transit to eastern cities, via Tacoma, has arrived. This is the first arrival of this fleet of four vessels now coming here, in addition to other vessels now seeking similar engagements.

WALLA WALLA, July 20.—Last night fire caught in Glaney's wheat field, burning 160 acres standing grain and eight stacks of headed wheat. Loss $3,000.

There was a visitation of grasshoppers here last night. They came by millions all night and clustered about the electric lights. Thousands were killed and the rest disappeared by morning.

A Forger Confesses.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Charles Grant has been arrested here for forgery, and made a full confession. In November, 1887, Grant gained the confidence of H. G. Tunstell, an Englishman of some means, who was about to buy property in Napa. Tunstell cabled to his brother in England to send him £600, but afterward countermanded his request. Grant, who was aware of these transactions, sent a cable to the brother in England, purporting to be signed by Tunstell, saying he had again changed his mind and asking that £600 be forwarded. This was done, and Grant obtained the money and went to New York. The matter was reported to the police at the time, but the forger was not captured until this week.

Fire at Sacramento.

SACRAMENTO, July 20.—At 5 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the rear of a Chinese wash-house on Third street. The wash-house and the saloon of P. Haggerty, next door, were soon in flames, which, before they could be controlled, spread to the tailor shop of Henry Garbe, the cigar store of Julius Steinhart and the saloon of F. Wager. The barber shop of A. Silveria was also damaged. Wager's saloon building was owned by Dr. Phelan, of San Francisco.

The building in which the fire started belongs to the Marguerite Home, founded by Mrs. M. E. Crocker, and like Phelan's building is insured. John M. Jackson, a sleeper in one of the buildings, was burned, probably fatally. He attempted to escape, but was driven back by the flames. The Chinese laundrymen had a narrow escape and were rescued by the firemen at a moment when they had about abandoned every hope of rescue. Total loss, $10,000; insurance, $3,000.

PRIZE RING GOSSIP.

It Was Indian Hemp That Knocked Out Kilrain.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Evening News, in an extra, prints a story to the effect that a letter has been received from a well-known newspaper man in the South, in which the writer says he is confident Kilrain was drugged previous to his battle with Sullivan, and that the business was done at Richburg the night before the battle, Kilrain being given Indian hemp mixed in jelly, and this drug, aided by the torrid sun, did its work.

A News reporter called on Frank Stevenson in regard to the matter, and Stevenson said: "Kilrain informed me after the fight that he had a strange feeling; whether he was drugged or not, I do not know."

Johnston, of the Police Gazette, when seen, said Flynn, who put up the ring, said to him (Johnston), "Richard K. Fox would give $5,000 if he knew what I learned at Richburg."

Nothing more definite could be learned.

DIDN'T "SEE THE TOWN" LAST NIGHT.

Instead of "seeing the town" tonight, John L. Sullivan remained in his room at the Vanderbilt Hotel. Billy Muldoon was summoned from Long Branch to accompany him to Boston, but the trip was postponed until Monday.

An evening paper states that Charley Mitchell and Pony Moore sailed for Liverpool on Monday.

GOING TO CINCH THE RAILROAD.

NEW ORLEANS, July 20.—The Times-Democrat's Jackson, Miss., special says: Attorney-General Miller today prepared and forwarded to be filed in the Lauderdale county Circuit Court, an information in the name of the District Attorney, against the Northeastern Railroad Company, setting forth in an informal manner the grievance of the State against said corporation, in its active participation in the Sullivan-Kilrain mill, and prays for a judgment of forfeiture and ouster.

A DETECTIVE AFTER KILRAIN.

BALTIMORE, July 20.—Detective Norris, who spent the last two days in New York, looking after Mitchell and Pony Moore, arrived here this morning to arrest Jake Kilrain and Johnny Murphy. He handed Marshal Frey the requisition papers signed by the Governor of Mississippi. The Marshal said the requisition is useless, as it did not specify the State of Maryland or bear the countersign of Governor Jackson. Norris went up to Jake's house, but he had been spirited away by friends.

BASEBALL.

Yesterday's League and Association Games in Brief.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Senators outplayed the Cleveland team at all points today, but after a very exciting finish they were defeated. It was a pitcher's contest. Score: Washington, 4; Cleveland, 5.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—Philadelphia won two games from Pittsburg this afternoon. It took ten innings to decide the first. The second game was a walk-over for the Phillies. Score: First game, Philadelphia, 4; Pittsburg, 3. Second game, Philadelphia, 16; Pittsburg, 1.

BOSTON, July 20.—The Bostons played in the hardest kind of luck today; they outbatted the Chicagos, but lost with men on bases. Gumbert was so effective and his support so perfect that in only two innings were more than one hit made. Score: Chicago, 2; Boston, 0.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The New York team played an excellent game in the field today, and to that is mainly due the victory over Indianapolis. Score: New York, 8; Indianapolis, 5.

BROOKLYN, July 20.—Brooklyn, 2; Athletics, 3.

CINCINNATI, July 20.—Cincinnati, 1; St. Louis, 5.

COLUMBUS, July 20.—Columbus, 4; Baltimore, 5.

LOUISVILLE, July 20.—No game; rain.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—The Stocktons won their fifth consecutive game today, and tied Oakland for the second place in the League race. Their success is largely due to Fudger, pitcher, who played a brilliant game. Stockton gained the lead in the second inning, which was never overcome.

SACRAMENTO, July 20.—The visitors proved too much for the local team today. The game was spirited throughout, but the decisions of Umpire Sylvester caused some dissatisfaction. Score: San Francisco, 6; Sacramento, 5.

ON ITS LAST LEGS.

The Transcontinental Association Going to Pieces.

CHICAGO, July 20.—A meeting, which is probably to determine the fate of the Transcontinental Railway Association, began in this city today, but, owing to the absence of several of the representatives of important lines, it adjourned until Monday next. The association has just now reached the critical period of its existence, both the Southern and Northern Pacific roads have given notice of withdrawal. Should they persist in their intentions it would be folly to attempt to continue the association. Efforts will be made to persuade them to reconsider their action, and in the case of the Northern Pacific there is hope of success. Traffic Manager Hannaford said today that he thought the matter would be amicably adjusted so far as his road is concerned; but the grievance of the Southern Pacific is the competition of the Canadian Pacific. It claims that the unreasonable differentials allowed that road, coupled with its freedom from legal restrictions, has enabled it to absorb the bulk of the Pacific Coast traffic, and the American lines are powerless to meet the competition while remaining members of the association. Strangely enough, representatives of the Canadian Pacific are in attendance, asking still further differential on San Francisco traffic, so the prospect for the adjustment of existing difficulties is not bright.

A Custom House Collapsed.

TUCSON, Ariz., July 20.—Word has been received of the falling of the Mexican Custom House at Saseily on the Sonora line. Twelve men were caught in the ruins. Three were dead when extricated.

At Lynn, Mass., burglars entered the jewelry store of H. K. J. Bidwell and stole $12,000 worth of jewelry.

DAILY HERALD

DEADLY ICE WATER.

Ex-Surgeon General Hammond Against Its Use.

THOROUGHLY AMERICAN HABIT.

It Kills the Appetite—Promotes Dyspepsia—and Causes General Derangement of the System.

"There is death in the pot," said Mr. Accum to the people of England, in his diatribe against dram-drinking. The words fell with startling force upon those in high and low places, and set up a train of inquiry which nothing but some short and terrible invective like his could have excited. Artists and manufacturers took up his idea and reproduced it on canvas and in almost every plastic material used for decoration or domestic purposes. Preachers announced it from their pulpits and drew fearful pictures of its appositeness; and, if we are to believe the assertions made at the time, many habitual drunkards were saved from a wretched life and a still more wretched death by being frightened into sobriety. Arguments would have been useless with such people, but a grinning skull looking over the edge of a wine-glass, or a skeleton clasping a decanter in his bony hands, or a snake coiled around the stem of a goblet, caused them to pause as they grasped the poisoned chalice, and to shrink back in terror as they dashed the death-giving vessel to the ground. Many Englishmen renounced their gin and took to tea instead, being further told that it was the "cup that cheers, but not inebriates."

The notion seems to be prevalent that in order more effectually to reform a drunkard his stomach must be drenched with water, and especially ice-water. This idea originated in the United States, and has gradually spread to Great Britain and Ireland and their dependencies. The result is that "cold-water brigades" and "ice-water brigades" have been formed in almost every country where the English language is spoken. Tea-drinking, which received so great an impetus from Mr. Accum's expressive words, is rapidly giving way before ice-water drinking. Philanthropic individuals combine and raise money to establish ice-water fountains in the most populous parts of our large cities, and the people are told to shun the liquor saloon and the beer cellar, and to quaff the refreshing liquor that nature supplies. These good people forget that the ice they put into the water, to make it, as they suppose, more fit for the wants of the human system, is their act and not Nature's. I have heard of one repentant distiller who on his deathbed, thinking thereby to atone for the destruction to those who had imbibed his whisky, appended a codicil to his will by which a considerable sum of money was set apart, the interest of which was forever to be devoted to supplying ice-water to all who should apply at the tail of a cart that was to be especially fitted up for the purpose, and to be driven through the streets. Probably more were killed by his whisky than by his ice-water, but that the latter had its victims there can be no doubt.

It is certainly true that more ice-water is drunk in the United States in one year than in all the rest of the world in ten. This fact is in part due to the facility with which ice can be obtained, and the comparatively low price at which it is sold; but our national craving for ice-water cannot be altogether the result of its cheapness, for we find that in Norway and Sweden, and in the high regions of India, South America and Switzerland, ice-water as a beverage is almost unknown. Certainly, so far as the appetite is concerned, it is the result of education. Young children, or adults not accustomed to drinking ice-water, find it at first not only unpleasant, but positively painful. Infants shudder when it is at first put into their mouths, and I have seen American Indians spit and squirm for several minutes after they had been induced to drink a tumbler of ice-cold water; but persistency in this, as in most matters of food or drink, almost invariably conquers, just as it does with tobacco or alcohol and many other things, which, originally being repulsive, finally become almost indispensible to the comfort or the factitious demands of system. There must be something inherent in the American organism which prompts to the formation of the habit, just as there is an inborn tendency in us to indulge in the use of "chewing-gum," hot, sodden bread, and indigestible pies. If the proclivity were an innocent one there would not be much to say against it; that it is extremely harmful is not a matter for doubt.

In the first place it may cause sudden death, especially if indulged in when the body is overheated. A very important part of the nervous system, called the solar plexus, is situated immediately behind the stomach. A severe blow inflicted on the body just over this part of the sympathetic system of nerves will cause death with as great rapidity as will a stab in the heart. Many a so-called man has killed his wife by kicking her in the stomach It is not the injury to this organ that produces instantaneous death, but the shock which is given the solar plexus, and through it to the heart. A big drink of ice water reduces the temperature of the solar plexus so suddenly that the action of the heart is greatly lessened, sometimes to such an extent as to cause instant death. It is quite common for persons to feel faint and become pale immediately after drinking a glass of ice water. They attribute these effects to heat or over-exertion, or to some other cause which has nothing to do with the result, not knowing that they have so weakened the heart as to prevent its sending a due amount of blood to the lungs and brain, and that, had the water been a little colder, life would possibly have been extinguished altogether. Direct experiments with instruments especially devised for the purpose of measuring the force of the heart's pulsations, establish the fact that there is no agent of the materia medica more powerful with some persons as a depressant of this organ than a large draught of ice-water. Under certain circumstances it acts with all the force and rapidity of prussic acid.

The people who do the most harm in this direction, in this age and country of ice-water drinking, are the keepers of the so-called mineral-water fountains. Most of them, I am sorry to say, are druggists and chemists, who ought to know better. It seems to be the chief object of these venders of frigid drinks to cool them down to the lowest possible point consistent with fluidity. As these waters generally contain some saline ingredients, they can be reduced below the freezing point of ordinary water without congealing. It appears from the signs that they display in front of their places of business that the colder they can make these mixtures the more pride they take in themselves and the more customers flock to their shops. Many deaths of persons have occurred while in the very act of drinking these more than ice-cold liquids, and I am myself conversant with numerous cases in which great mental and physical prostration was the result, and from which recovery did not take place for several days. In two of these instances obstinate facial neuralgia, lasting over a year and yielding only to energetic medical treatment and complete change of climate, was induced.

Besides being one of the most prolific causes of neuralgic affections, very cold drinks injure the teeth. They crack the enamel, and therefore increase the liability to decay. Americans as a nation have worse teeth than any other people in the world, and this fact is due more to the excessive use of ice-water than to any other cause. In the old days of slavery the negroes of the South were remarkable for their good teeth, for ice-water was a drink unknown to them. But with freedom, and more money at their disposal than they formerly had, they have taken to tippling the icy liquid, and as a consequence bad teeth are now frequently seen among them.

A person who drinks a great deal of ice-water at meals very materially lessens his ability to enjoy the good things of the table, for the sense of taste is greatly impaired when the temperature of the inside of the mouth is reduced many degrees below the normal standard. Indeed, a very excellent method of counteracting the offensive taste of certain medicines is for the one who is about to swallow them to hold a little ice-water in the mouth for a few moments. The nauseous dose can be then gulped down without a tenth part of its offensiveness being experienced. On the other hand, the delicate flavors of the finest wines are entirely lost to the person who has, before drinking them, taken a glass of ice water.

The effect upon the stomach of ice-water drinking is no less marked. As soon as the cold liquid reaches this organ the blood vessels, which are enlarged during the process of digestion, in order that the due amount of gastric juice may be secreted, are at once contracted, and the function is accordingly more or less completely arrested. Confirmed dyspepsia is a necessary consequence, and this frequently assumes the form of gastric catarrh, than which few disorders are more intractable. Nor does the morbid action cease here. Many a case of obstinate diarrhœa owes its origin to the refrigeration of the sympathetic ganglia of the abdomen induced by ice-water. There is some reason to believe that cancer of the stomach—a disease certainly more frequent among Americans than other people—is likewise one of its consequences.

It has been asserted by some medical writers that excessive ice water drinking is a prolific cause of Bright's disease of the kidneys. There does not seem, however, as yet, to be sufficient evidence to support this view, but it is, nevertheless, quite possible that it is not altogether unfounded. Judging by analogy, and by what we know of the effect of ice-water upon other internal organs, I see no reason to doubt that the kidneys may also be brought under its morbid influence. So long as there is a reasonable doubt upon the subject, it would seem to be prudent for those who are predisposed to kidney disease to drink water considerably above the temperature of 32 degrees.

Water for drinking purposes should never be below 50 degrees. We can almost always get it, even in the hottest weather, as cool as this by letting it run for a minute or two from any household faucet, or drawing it from any country well. If not, there is no objection to cooling it to the point mentioned. The East India "monkey," which can now be had almost anywhere in the country, and by means of which the contained water is cooled by its own evaporation, answers the purpose admirably. I am quite sure that if ice-water should be generally discarded as a drink the average duration of life would be lengthened and existence rendered more tolerable.—[North American Review.

The Lamentable Ballad of the Bloody Brook.

Come Listen to the story of brave Lathrop and his men,
How they fought, how they died,
When they marched against the redskins in the autumn days, and then
How they fell, in their pride,
By Pocumtuck side.

"Who will go to Deerfield meadows and bring the ripened grain?"
Said old Mosely to his men in array.
"Take the wagon and the horses and bring it back again,
But be sure that no man stray,
All the day, on the way."

Then the flower of Essex started, with Lathrop at their head,
Wise and brave, bold and true.
He had fought the Pequots long ago, and now to Mosely said:
"Be there many, be there few,
I will bring the grain to you."

They gathered all the harvest, and they marched on the way
Through the woods which blazed like fire.
No soldier left the line of march to wander or to stray,
Till the wagons were stalled in the mire,
And the men began to tire.

The wagons have all forded the brook as it flows,
And then the rear guard strays
To pick the purple grapes that are hanging from the boughs,
When crack! to their amaze,
A hundred firerocks blaze!

Brave Lothrop he lay dying, but as he fell he cried,
"Each man to his tree," said he,
"Let no one yield an inch!" and so the soldier died;
And not a man of all can see
Where the foe can be.

And Philip and his devils pour in their shot so fast,
From behind and before,
That every man is shot down and breathes his last;
Every man lies dead in his gore,
To fight no,more, no more!

Oh, weep, ye maids of Essex, for the lads who have died,
The flower of Essex they!
The Bloody brook still ripples by the black mountain side.
But never shall they come to see the ocean side,
And never shall the bridegroom return to his bride,
From that dark and cruel day, cruel day!

Daybreak.

Sometimes, when the night of woe
So deep on my spirit lies
That I see no gladdening glow
In the whole broad sweep of skies,

A thought of you will gleam
Across my sight like a ray;
And the night has been but a dream,
For, lo! it is dawn—and day.

HOW MANY WAYS CAN THIS BE READ?

THE LOS ANGELES HERALD IS BY ALL ACKNOWLEDGED have been the prime factor in the discovery and making known of the resources of this section. To its sagacious outgivings more than to any other agency our marvelous development is attributed.

THE HERALD has from its inception watched with a single eye the budding industries of this portion of the State. For each good enterprise this journal has at all times had a word of cheerful encouragement. In spite of the skeptical, it has survived to see all of its earlier predictions fulfilled to the letter.

THE HERALD to-day takes the lead in all respects among the papers of Southern California. Its first care still is the material, intellectual and social interests of its section. It aims to be truthful rather than over-zealous in its publication of news; to be conservative rather than over-sensational, in its policy; to be clean and decent, respecting the sacred precincts of the home and fireside, rather than indecently salacious in its tone.

THE HERALD gets all the news from all quarters of the globe with promptness accuracy and dispatch. Its local staff is energetic and well-trained to miss nothing of real importance to its readers. It is always alive to all public enterprises.

THE HERALD still takes pride in aiding any legitimate material, intellectual or social movement which will benefit the people. No other journal in this section approaches it in those important respects.

Something About German Apprentices.

MUTUAL RIGHTS AND DUTIES.

Work and Wages—Rights of Apprentices—Industrial Schools—Female Operatives.

According to the report of the factory inspectors of the German Empire, business during the year 1887 was good, and a general improvement manifested itself, especially during the last six months of the year. Activity prevailed in many works which in 1886 had with difficulty been able to keep their men employed, and the shortening of the hours of labor, which had been of frequent occurrence on account of falling off of orders, came generally to a stop, and an increased employment of labor succeeded thereto. The general improvement on business which thus began in 1887 continued throughout 1888 to an increased extent, which is said by one of the leading journals of the Empire to have been the most active year since 1870-71.

The biennial report of 1886 shows that there were employed in the factories that year 21,053 children from 12 to 14 years of age and 134,529 young persons from 14 to 16 years old. The regulations of the State governing children are often violated, but nearly as often enforced.

There is but slight disposition among manufacturers to provide themselves with skilled laborers by training up apprentices. The most frequent objection, however, is that the apprentices do not want to serve their time fully out, and when they have acquired a trade leave those of whom they have learned it to go to some one else.

There is less running away by apprentices than a few years ago, even when there is no written contract. This is said to be because labor in general has become more stable, and because apprentices are paid better wages towards the close of their apprenticeship than formerly.

Here are some special regulations of the German Empire controlling the employment of apprentices: The master must give the apprentice a thorough instruction in the trade he undertakes to teach them, either personally or by a trustworthy substitute. He must furnish the apprentice opportunity to attend divine worship on Sundays and church days, and teach him industry and morality.

The apprentice is subject to the master as to a father, and is required to pay full obedience to those placed over him. The apprenticeship, if no longer period is provided for in the indenture, can be terminated at any time during the first four years by either party, but the time of trial cannot be made to last longer than three months. After the expiration of this time it can be ended by the master (1) when it is learned that the apprentice or those acting for him presented false testimonials or deceived the master as to the apprentice's obligations to work elsewhere; (2) when it turns out that the apprentice is given to stealing or to a shameful life; (3) when he quits work without permission, or emphatically refuses to perform the conditions in the contract; (4) when he carelessly goes about with fire or light, contrary to the command of his master; (5) when he is guilty of gross misconduct towards his master or those over him; (6) when he willfully damages the property of his master or fellow-workmen; (7) when he leads members of the family of his master or fellow-workmen to commit immoral or criminal acts; and (8) when the apprentice proves to be incapable of doing the work of the apprenticeship or gets some very bad disease; but in the cases of 1 to 7 the dismissal must occur within one week after the circumstances are learned of by the master.

On the part of the apprentices it can be dissolved after the four weeks or three months of trial (1) when he is utterly unable to work; (2) when the master or those acting for him, or their families, lead their employers, or the families of the same, to commit acts contrary to law or good morals; (3) when the master will not pay his workmen their just wages; (4) when the continuation of the apprenticeship would endanger the health or life of the apprentice, and (5) when the master neglects his legal obligations to the apprentice in respect to health, morals or instruction, or grossly misuses his authority over him, or becomes incapable of fulfilling the obligations undertaken by him in the contract.

On the conclusion of the apprenticeship the master has to give the apprentice a certificate showing the trade, the length of the apprenticeship, the progress made and the general conduct of the apprentice, which certificate local officials authenticate.

The employment of young persons and children in the factories is governed by the following regulations, which are also understood to be applicable to young apprentices: Children under 12 years of age are not to be employed, and those under 14 are not to labor more than six hours a day. Children who have not been to school the required length of time can be used in factories only when three hours a day of school instruction are guaranteed them. Young persons from 14 to 16 years old are not to labor more than ten hours a day. They cannot begin work before 5:30 a. m., nor continue it later than 8:30 p. m., and must be given regular resting pauses; this to be, for children half an hour, for young persons 12 to 14 one hour at midday, as well as at least half an hour in the forenoon and half an hour in the afternoon. No work is to be undertaken during the pauses. They must be allowed Sundays and holidays.

Besides the instruction which apprentices get in the factories themselves, there are particular schools and institutions for imparting to them general knowledge or fitting them for the special vocations they are pursuing, such as night schools, trade and art schools, museums, libraries, and workingmen's clubs, for general or special improvement.

In some of these "Gewerbeschulen" or industrial schools instruction is given on Sundays. The mechanics' schools are maintained by money supplied by the State, and by trades unions and school fees.

At the foundries and furnaces skilled workmen, instructors and bosses are greatly needed, but they are seldom obtained through formal apprenticeships, as young persons are generally taken and let go under the same conditions as the older workmen.

As they develop in body and show aptitude for work they are taken in among the regular workmen and converted into roasters, smelters, puddlers, forgers or rollers, and in the course of time made bosses or first men at the furnaces. There are no technical schools for them.

Unlike in most other factories, the apprentices of the porcelain industry soon earn more than the so-called youthful workmen, who are paid by the day, as the apprentices oftentimes earn in piecework one-half as much as the adult turners, painters, and decorators.

At the celebrated royal porcelain works at Weissen, the apprenticeship lasts six years. The apprentices get at first $3 per month with board, which gradually increases until it reaches $18, and is given according to the skill displayed by the recipients. The apprentices have to attend a drawing-school connected with the establishment, where there are three teachers of drawing and one of modeling. The instruction is given free of charge, and lasts from one to three years, according to the requirements of the apprentices.

On the whole there was an increased employment of women in the factories during the year. In the cities of Aix-la-Chapelle and Burtscheld, at the close of the year, there were 7,548 females employed in the factories, 4,750 in the textile factories, 994 in factories making sewing needles, 1,477 in the cigar factories and 327 in other branches of industry. Of these women quite a number live so far from their places of work that many of them get home but once a week, and are from home from Monday morning to Saturday night. They largely sleep at night in their work dresses in the factories; in the workrooms on the cloth, or even upon the loose wool and such things, which, the inspector remarks, is to be decidedly disapproved of, as well from sanitary as from moral considerations.

A much more unsuitable sleeping place the inspector found in a cloth factory, in the county of Aix-la-Chapelle, where the female operatives had a room whose door could not be closed, containing five double beds and partly filled with empty and filled carboys for acids and a variety of other things, which, in consequence of loose flooring, let in the fumes from a dyeing-room below. On the other hand, other factories are said to have provided exemplary sleeping accommodation for their employees.

The length of the time worked remained pretty much the same as for a number of years past. In the Dusseldori district the factory operatives get, as a rule, from one hour to an hour and a half for rest at midday, and from a quarter to half an hour in the forenoon and afternoon.

Strikes were rare and were mostly made for increased wages. Relations between employers and employees are generally good or satisfactory, and even, in some cases, patriarchal.

The working people, taken as a whole, are badly housed. In general there is a great lack of suitable tenements for them, and over-crowding in miserable old buildings is the rule. During the year a number of manufacturers put up dwelling-houses for their people, which are let to them free of rent or on advantageous terms; but this is done, I am inclined to think, rather at small, out-of-the-way places, to attract laborers, than in populated centers. In some cases employers crowded their work people together in their houses and compelled two or more families to live together in one large room.—[Boston Commercial Bulletin.

A WORD OF CAUTION.

In this as in every other locality where it is known, there are hundreds of persons who are taking Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. To those we want to say one word. In nine cases out of every ten it is effecting specific cures. But word comes to us occasionally of people who report that it operates too freely upon the bowels. We want to call the attention of those to the fact that they are not following the printed instructions and are taking too much of it. If it acts too freely reduce the dose, never taking any more at any time than causes easy and perfect action. Keep this injunction in mind, and take it regularly for a while and do not indulge in too much greasy food, and we will have your testimonial within a fortnight. If taken under these conditions it is an absolute cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, sick headaches, constipation, face eruptions and liver and kidney disorders. It may be asked how it can possibly cure so many ailments. But the reason is clear. All those troubles are the legitimate result of improper liver and kidney action or impaired digestive organs. Its effects upon those functions are as astonishing to the medical fraternity as to the thousands who are daily taking it.

AFFAIRS ABROAD.

Turkey Tacked on to the Triple Alliance.

THE DREIBUND AND THE PORTE.

Threatening Aspect of Affairs on the Lower Danube—The Servian Crisis.

[Associated Press Dispatches to the HERALD]

BERLIN, July 20.—The long pending negotiations with the Porte, aiming at the adhesion of Turkey to the Triple Alliance, have finally resulted in an entente, under which the Dreibund guarantees to maintain the integrity of Turkish territory in accordance with the treaty of Berlin. The question concerning Crete is reserved, Prince Bismarck promising to influence Greece not to interfere, provided further autonomy is conceded the Cretans. It is stipulated that Turkish troops shall co-operate with Austria in Servia and Bulgaria in the event of war with Russia. The Sultan received Count Radowitz, the German Ambassador, on Wednesday and arranged for the reception of Emperor William, whose visit to Constantinople depended upon the Porte's conclusion of an entente. The negotiations were accelerated by the gravity of the situation in Servia.

THE SERVIAN QUESTION.

A Cabinet council, held in Vienna Thursday, debated whether the time had come for military intervention by Austria. The War Minister reported the arming of Servian reserves en masse. Russian officers, he said, were engaged in inspecting fortresses, barracks and depots in Servia. The Minister advocated immediate action. Everything was ready to march two army corps into Servia. The Council declined to wait until Count Kalnoky influenced the reappearance of King Milan in Belgrade. The partisans of King Milan are eager for a civil war to crush the Russians. If it occurs King Milan will invoke Austrian assistance and thus give Kalnoky ground to interfere.

GERMANY AND SWITZERLAND.

The interview at the Foreign Office between Count Herbert Bismarck and M. Roth, the Swiss Minister, was amicable. Count Herbert intimated that the German reply to the Swiss note, though denouncing the existing treaty settlement, would invite early negotiations for a new treaty. The tenor of the reply would be so friendly that Count Herbert was confident that the Swiss government would consider the hostile phase of the dispute closed.

The Swiss Secretary of Justice and Police went to Zurich, Thursday, and submitted a number of German Socialists to interrogation, and obtained pledges that, while residents of Switzerland, they would renounce all propaganda compromising the country. The same pledge will be demanded of every refugee sheltered in Switzerland.

SOCIALISTS TAKING HEART.

The Socialists have taken heart over the Halberstadt election for member of the Reichstag. The feature of the contest was large Socialist gains. The experience at Halberstadt will lead to a cessation of the quarrel of the Government groups.

The strike of bakers in Berlin continues. The Government has placed at the service of the masters soldiers who are able to bake bread, in order to prevent a stoppage involving a famine.

PARNELL HONORED.

A Rousing Reception Given Him at Edinburgh.

EDINBURGH, July 20.—The freedom of the city was conferred upon Parnell today. The presentation took place in the Corn Exchange, which was packed to the doors, while hundreds were unable to gain admittance. The Earl of Aberdeen was in the chair. Parnell was given an enthusiastic reception, the audience rising and cheering for several minutes. Deputations from all the Liberal societies in Scotland presented addresses. Gladstone, in a letter to the Earl of Aberdeen, wrote: "The time has not yet arrived for detailing the memorable experience of Parnell during the last two years. I believe that experience to be unparalleled in the history of the British statesmen in Parliament for the past two centuries. I consider the Parnellites to be, in the best sense, conservatives. They have been a restorative force of great value to the peace of Ireland and the honor of England, while the tyranny of the Government has deepened the aversion of Ireland."

Boulanger Declared Ineligible.

PARIS, July 20.—M. Constans, Minister of the Interior, has decided to form a body of police, consisting of one hundred men, apart from the regular force, whose special duties it shall be to suppress seditious assemblies. The National says9 The Government proposes to warn electors that General Boglanger is ineligible as a candidate for the Councils General.

The Paradox.

LONDON, July 20.—The Cinque Ports yacht regatta took place today. Public interest was centered in the appearance of the yacht Paradox, this being her first race. Six yachts started, the Paradox withdrawing early in the race owing to an accident. She will try again on Monday.

The Simpson-Howton Tragedy.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 20.—The Deputy Sheriffs all returned from Mud creek this afternoon. Scroggins, who remained to guard the gin-house at the scene of the Simpson-Howton tragedy, yesterday told the inmates that they might go undisturbed if they would let him go to take care of Deputy Morgan, who was lying wounded in the sun and pleading for water at a point covered by their guns. They agreed, and came out and went away. When the deputies arrived they had fourteen hours start, and no pursuit was attempted. Morgan is still alive, though desperately wounded.

TRIAL TRIPS.

The Petrel's Trial Unsatisfactory—The Yorktown's Turn Next.

BALTIMORE, July 20.—The trial trip of the Petrel today is thought to be unsatisfactory, as she went only as far as Kent island, and as the owners were reticent in giving information. It is said that she developed 1,350 horse power, 250 more than required, but this was for a very short time.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—A board, consisting of Commander W. R. Bridgman, Chief Engineer G. W. Stivers and Naval Constructor R. W. Steele, has been appointed and directed to meet at New York for the purpose of making an examination of the Yorktown, and reporting on the final trial of that vessel. After an examination of the vessel in the harbor she will proceed to sea for a forty-eight hours' trial, during which her battery will be fired sufficiently to test the efficiency and strength of the vessel under the shock. Her extreme speed will not be tested.

Territorial Conventions.

HELENA, Mont., July 20.—Eaton, of Park county, today presented to the convention a communication from New York, signed "Chadwick," requesting that the new State be called "Jefferson." The matter created considerable merriment. The petitioner stated that he felt convinced, if carried out, it would result to the glory of the convention and secure a Democratic majority in the State.

The Committee on Finance reported unfavorably the gambling bill, prohibiting all manner of games where liquor is sold. Adjourned until Monday.

OLYMPIA, W. T., July 20.—The convention opened today with an affidavit from the Secretary of the Woman's Suffrage Bureau, that a petition with 25,000 signatures had been burned up in the Seattle fire. The announcement was received with satisfaction by the convention, which then went into Committee of the Whole, and the judiciary articles were adopted, practically as previously reported.

SIOUX FALLS, Dak., July 20.—The convention met and adjourned without transacting any business whatever. About two-thirds of the reports of the standing committees have been submitted, the greater part of which have been made a special order for next Tuesday.

BISMARCK, July 20.—The Constitutional Convention adjourned today without the transaction of any business, save the introduction of two articles. These were: Providing that all elections shall be by secret ballot; that ballots shall be provided by the State and counties, respectively; all electors must be registered ninety days before the day of election; also providing that the only purposes for which funds may be used before or after elections by any candidate, or his agent, shall be for the renting of halls for meetings, the posting of circulars, newspaper advertising and the payment of public speakers and traveling expenses.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, July 20.—The convention provided today for laws protecting live-stock from contagious diseases by a system of quarantine. Boise is made the capital for ten years, after which it may be removed. The first Legislature is limited to eighteen Senators and thirty-six Representatives, with power to increase to not over twenty-four Senators and sixty Representatives.

KANSAS CITY, July 20.—A Times Guthrie special says: The Territorial Convention adjourned until August 20th. The proceedings today were harmonious. Committees were appointed which will meet during the recess.

SANTA FE, N. M., July 20.—Fifty delegates from different parts of the county met here this afternoon and nominated delegates to the State Constitutional Convention, which assembles here September 3d. A long series of resolutions, demanding Statehood for New Mexico on equal terms with the other States, was adopted.

The Big Salt Company.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The New North American Salt Company occupies two columns in the evening papers, with advertisements of capital stock $11,000,000, and proposes to issue $4,000,000 worth of bonds. The advertisement states the object is to unify and systematize the salt interests of the country. The prospectus states that arrangements are made for the purchase and contol of nearly all the existing salt producing properties on the North American continent. The company insists that it is not a trust, and as a proof, states that anybody may buy stock who will pay for it.

It is announced that the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo railroad will have to default on interest on its five per cent. bonds, due on September 1st, amounting to $200,000, and a receiver will then be appointed.

At Rockford, Ill., for some time Mr. and Mrs. George J. Sussmilch, each over 75 years of age, had been in poor health. Late Friday night they got on a street car and went to the end of the line, walked to the river, tied their arms together and jumped in. Their bodies were recovered four miles below the city. The only cause known for the suicide is old age and poor health.

The English poor authorities are making arrangements to send over to the United States 250 Irish families unable to support themselves in the old country. This is the intelligence imparted at Castle Garden by Thomas Shea, one of the paupers.

The sensational trial of attendants Crogan and Richardson of the Cook County, Ill., Insane Asylum, charged with murdering inmate Burns by mistreatment, came to a close last night, the jury bringing in the surprising verdict of "not guilty."

Statements by business associates of Mr. Campbell, in whose air-ship Hogan, the aeronaut, was lost, are to the effect that the boat part in which Hogan sailed was a new, untried and defective affair. The partners have differences, and the original ship is locked up in storage.

At West Superior, Wis., a gang of strikers overpowered the Sheriff and police, and forced a large number of coal dock employes to throw up their jobs. Six of the leaders were arrested. The Mayor telegraphed Governor Hoard, asking that troops be sent. In response a company from Eau Claire arrived Saturday morning.

The name of the man who was arrested on suspicion of being the Whitechapel murderer is William Brodie. When arraigned before the Police Magistrate, he stated that the confession made by him to the police was true. The prisoner was remanded for a week.

Vedolia Cardinalis.

From every quarter comes the most encouraging reports of the white scale destroyer—the Australian lady bug. Those who have had the best opportunity to study them, and note the manner in which the scale disappears before their attacks, and observe the wonderful rapidity with which they multiply in numbers, are the most sanguine in the belief that the day of total annihilation of the white scale is very near at hand. Early in June, Mr. N. H. Hosmer placed a colony of about three dozen of the larva of the lady bug on one of his trees within two hundred feet of the Vista office, and since that time we have observed them daily. The first hatching from this small number were found plentifully distributed on all the trees within fifty feet of the tree on which they were colonized, while the latter tree was simply alive with them. This first crop of thousands from the original small colony are now depositing their eggs, and within two weeks more there will be millions of the larvæ in this small orchard—enough, we believe, to clean out all the scale in it. If not, the succeeding generations certainly will. We have made what we believe, after close observation, to be a conservative estimate, and we figure the product from the three dozen parasites which Mr. Hosmer placed in his orchard in June at about 50,000,000,000 in December—that is, after seven months, or five generations. And as Mr. Hosmer's colony at the time he set it represented but about one in a thousand of all the parasites then in the county, it will be seen that by next December there will be enough scale-destroyers already produced to gobble all the white scale in the county, and cry for more. And we repeat this estimate is a conservative one, and we believe is far below what will be found to be the result. And if, by next January, it is not found that the white scale is practically exterminated in this county, we will confess that we have tried to write about something of which we were ignorant.—[Sierra Madre Vista.

Raise the Fallen.

The regular meetings of the Social Purity League are announced from week to week through the columns of the daily papers, and perhaps it will not be out of place to say a few words explanatory of the work. The object is certainly a worthy one, and should meet with more encouragement than it has so far done. There are homes of sin and sorrow, where kind words and Christian sympathy are strangers, and where the helping hand is rarely, if ever, raised to lift the fallen and sinful ones, and point them to a better life. To work among the erring, and, if possible, save and reclaim them from a life of shame, furnish them with a quiet home, away from evil associations and the tempter's power, is the object of this organization. We propose to make this home self-sustaining, in time, where all kinds of home industry in woman's line will be carried on. But at present we are laboring under some discouragements, and many difficulties. We need almost everything. We have a "rented home," for the present, in a quiet portion of the city, with a noble Christian woman as matron, where those who are ready, and willing, and determined to reform will find shelter and protection. The home is entirely undenominational in character, and is surely a much-needed enterprise and deserves to succeed. Those who are engaged in this work are "busy women," not in the odious sense, but overworked, and will gladly welcome all who are in earnest to our ranks.

To make it what we desire and expect, we must have land and money. We want at least five acres, in a desirable location, and some of the thousands of gold lying idle. Who will respond to this call? Donations for any amount, large or small, will be thankfully received, and can be left at Kilgore & Stradley's, 111 South Spring, or at the Childress Safe Deposit Bank. We will gladly send a copy of our constitution and by-laws to any who wish them. The names of the officers and members of this organization are a sufficient guarantee that the work is legitimate.

The Hotel del Coronado

Has witnessed many lively scenes during the past few weeks, combining a grand mixture of pleasure, business and recreation. The weary brain-workers forming the S. C. Editorial Association, many accompanied by their wives and families, had a grand old time, lasting nearly a week. The patrons of the glorious sport of yachting, with their many friends, made this their headquarters during the last gallant struggle for supremacy among those gay "Rovers of the Sea." Add to these the many visitors from the bleak and foggy North, attracted by our genial, even climate and sunny skies: these, with our semi-monthly excursions from Los Angeles and vicinity, all combine to make a grand total of visitors to this peerless resort, and speaks volumes in praise of its unequalled natural advantages, its careful, kindly management and its moderate charges. On next Saturday our citizens and visitors will again have an opportunity of visiting the "Hotel par Excellence," and they will, there is no doubt, respond both in numbers and enthusiasm equal to any former occasion. For particulars see advertisement.

HAVE YOU A COLD IN THE HEAD which does not get better? Have you an excessive secretion of mucus matter in the nasal passages? Are you troubled by hawking, spitting, weak and inflamed eyes, frequent soreness of the throat, ringing or roaring in the ears, more or less impairment of the hearing, loss of smell, memory impaired, dullness or dizziness of the head, dryness or heat of the nose? Have you lost all sense of smell? your breath foul? If so, you have the Catarrh. Some have all these symptoms, others only a part.

California Cat-R-Cure

Restores the sense of taste and smell, removes bad taste and unpleasant breath, resulting from catarrh. Easy and pleasant to use. Follow directions and a cure is warranted by all druggists.

RECOMMENDED.

CAPTAIN CHARLES L. DIMON, of New York City, formerly special agent of the Phoenix and Home Insurance Company at San Francisco, Cal., says: "I had been troubled with Chronic Catarrh for twenty years. A friend in Woodland, Cal., recommended your California CAT-R-CURE. I procured a jar, having but little faith in its curative properties; but I must say, after using three jars, I am cured of that disgusting disease. Inclosed find $5, for which send me California CAT-R-CURE for some friends, who are sufferers."

Mr. A. Elliott of St. Louis is at the Hollenbeck.

J. S. Phillips of Covina was in the city yesterday.

Mr. C. W. Brown of Chicago is spending a few days in the city.

Messrs. L. M. Sprecker and E. E. Burrall of Colton are visiting the city.

J. W. Adams, of the Chicago and Alton, is out of the city for a few days.

Messrs. J. Willard, James Schloss and W. B. Townsend of San Francisco are visiting the city and are at the Hollenbeck.

NEWS NOTES.

Transfers of real estate yesterday amounted to $67,265, and were 48 in number. Of these, 16 were for more than $1,000 each, and 14 were for nominal considerations.

An empty frame dwelling house on the corner of Virginia avenue and Cummings street, was destroyed by fire at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. It was owned by G. Tononi, and was valued at $300. No insurance.

The Neptune, a big lumber schooner, came into Redondo on Friday with a cargo of lumber for the United States Government. The War Department is doing some work in Arizona which requires 1,000,000 feet of lumber. It is to be delivered at Redondo and shipped from there by rail to its destination.

A mass meeting and reception will be given to Rev. J. A. Brooks, late candidate on the Prohibition ticket for Vice-President of the United States, at Longstreet's hall to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. P. F. Bresee, Geo. Dunlap, Mrs. S. A. Keyes and Sadie Hare will deliver addresses of welcome.

The property-owners on Aliso street, representing 3,100 feet, will present a protest to the City Council on Monday against the construction of a sewer on Aliso street as proposed. They say they are in favor of a sewer, but if laid according to the present plans, it cannot be connected with the general sewer system. The protest is signed by all the principal owners on the street.

Le Progres has shown itself to possess enterprise as far as news is concerned. It is the only French paper in Los Angeles that published the speeches commemorative of the fall of the Bastile in full, as also a full description of the events which transpired on that memorable day. The presence of such men as F. Violis and T. L. Loughlin, Jr., at the head of that journal is a sure guaranty of its success.

LONG BEACH.

Interesting Exercises at the Sessions Yesterday.

At Long Beach yesterday, the devotional hour was led by T. E. Robinson, who spoke on "Let Your Light so Shine." A young ladies' meeting at 10 o'clock was led by Mrs. Hilbish. At 11 o'clock a lecture was delivered by Rev. Dr. Cherring on "Hindoo Incantations." At 4 o'clock the young people's meeting was led by Rev. J. M. Hilbish. At 7:30 the musical entertainment was given by the Jinglers. At today's session, Rev. Dr. Bresee, of Pasadena, will deliver the sermon.

THE CHAUTAUQUA.

The following communication has been handed in for publication:

The action of the Alliance in attempting to organize a Chautauqua Assembly at Long Beach yesterday is greatly to be regretted. It is both hasty and injudicious, and can only result in injury to the church, as well as to the legitimate Chautauqua interests. It is a fundamental principle of all Chautauqua Assemblies, that they shall be severed from all sectarian and denominational control, and any action which tends to violate this salutary precept can only result in disaster to its projectors.

If Chautauqua is to obtain its best results, if it is to become a potent force in the advancement of popular education, it must be entirely severed from the control of any one church, because it will require the united influence of all to enable it to attain the highest results.

Recognizing this to be the foundation upon which the prosperity of the organization in Southern California is based, the Chautauqua Assembly of Southern California found it absolutely necessary to remove from Long Beach to Redondo. This removal was affected by a full majority of the directors and trustees after weeks of deliberation and and careful consideration. The fact of this removal, contrary to the desires of many Long Beach people, has resulted in an unfortunate controversy. That the public may have in a brief form the points in question, they are now stated. While at Long Beach, the Chautauqua Assembly built a nineteen-room house, at a cost of about $1,500. This building was erected on the land of the Long Beach Methodist Resort Association, with their consent. After the removal of the Assembly to Redondo, the Resort Association took possession without right or title, and has steadily refused to surrender the same to the Assembly.

For this a suit was brought against the Resort Association, and a judgment was recovered of $450 and the restitution of the building. About the time of the meeting of the present Alliance at Long Beach, rumors were freely circulated to the effect that a strong effort would be made to organize a new Chautauqua Assembly, but nothing was definitely stated until the morning of July 16th. On that day it was publicly announced that "the home of the Chautauqua was still at Long Beach," and all Chautauquans were invited to be present to effect an organization. It was also announced that the usual Chautauqua degrees would be conferred and diplomas granted, and hence it was obvious that an effort to depose the existing Chautauqua Assembly from its corporate position had been planned. The effort, though ill-advised and certain of ultimate condemnation, made it necessary that some steps should be taken by the Assembly to assert its authority and to protect its corporate privileges. A complaint was therefore laid before Judge Clark, of the Superior Court, stating the facts as published and asking that the parties engaged in the matter be restrained from such an infraction of the corporate name of the Assembly. The Judge made an order citing the defendants to appear before him at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, to show cause why such an order should not be made. At that time counsel for the defendants read a lengthy affidavit, signed by G. K. Crow and George L. Cole, in which the Court was solemnly assured "that they had not, nor had any of the others, associated themselves together for the purpose of holding a Chautauqua Assembly," or "Assemblies with Chautauqua exercises," or that any of them intend or propose to confer Chautauqua honors under the designation adopted by plaintiff as its corporate name, "nor any feature thereof." Under these sworn assurances and absolute denials of any intention to infringe upon the authority of the Chautauqua Assembly of Southern California, the Court declined to issue an injunction. If these disclaimers had been made in good faith, and the letter and spirit of the statements compiled with, there would now be no reasonable ground for complaint; but a perusal of the proceedings which were had at Long Beach on Thursday will convince any candid person that they were simply subterfuges to conceal predetermined evasion. An organization was immediately effected and diplomas of graduation were presented to a large number of persons, and among them Mr. Crow. Resolutions were adopted providing for the holding of future Assemblies at Long Beach. The fledgling was denominated the Long Beach Assembly of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle of the Pacific Coast, and committees were appointed to make arrangements for the meeting of future annual Assemblies. The contrast between the sworn statement of what it was intended to do and what was done is too sharply defined to require comment. If any uncertainty as to the very evident evasion exists in even the dullest apprehension, it is only necessary to quote the language of one of the defendants to remove it forever. The speaker said in reference to the Judge's refusal: "This action, I understand, settles the question for all time with reference to the Chautauqua and Long Beach." It must be remembered, too, that there was no delegated authority by any of the organized circles throughout the State to form the association which was attempted. It cannot and will not affect the Assembly as at present incorporated. This is a plain statement of the facts, and it can readily be seen that the results have proven the wisdom of the constituted authorities of the Chautauqua in removing from Long Beach. It is to be regretted that any association of persons calling themselves Chautauquans could be induced to commit so grave an error; but it is sincerely to be hoped that time and reflection will show them the folly of attempting to chain intelligence to the car of any creed, however powerful that creed may be. The necessity for litigation between moral organizations is unpleasant, but the maintenance of just rights is an imperative duty.

THE CHAUTAUQUA ASSEMBLY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Los Angeles, July 20.

BADLY TREATED WIVES.

Two Cases that Came into Notice Yesterday.

W. H. Nicholson, a respectably dressed man, was arrested at his home, on Upper Main street, by Officer James last night for disturbing the peace. He, while intoxicated, beat his wife in a brutal manner for some trifling disagreement which arose between them. He was locked up in the City Prison.

A middle-aged lady named Mrs. Gould called at the Police Station last night and asked for Captain Harris. Her face was heavily veiled, so that it was impossible to see her features, but on being ushered into the Chief's office she lifted her veil and revealed to the officials her face, which was literally bruised beyond recognition, and this she stated was the result of her husband's cruelty. They lived together in a pleasant home on Brooklyn Heights, and he returned from town about supper time in a state of irritable drunkenness. After finding fault with everything about the house, he turned upon her and beat her, with the result stated above, and she said that unless he was arrested she would be afraid to return home again. Accordingly an officer was dispatched to Brooklyn Heights, and about 11 o'clock last night Mr. Gould was brought to the City Jail in the patrol wagon. He was just recovering from his debauch, and frankly acknowledged having beaten his wife, for which he expressed his regrets, but said that he had cause for his conduct.

Died on Horseback.

A message was received about 8 o'clock last night at the Coroner's office to the effect that a youth named Dominguez had died suddenly at Long Beach yesterday morning. As far as could be ascertained the circumstances surrounding his death are as follows: Young Dominguez, with several companions, were riding on the beach, and a race was proposed and immediately agreed upon. A course was measured out, with a stake set up as a winning post, and five or six of the party drew their horses up in line and started for the goal as fast as their animals could carry them. Dominguez easily distanced his companions, and was seen to pass the winning post several seconds before any of the others. To the surprise of all who witnessed the race, however, the winner after passing the post did not slacken the speed of his horse, but continued at the same breakneck speed for some distance, when he was seen to fall, and the riderless steed soon afterwards came to a standstill. On reaching the place where Dominguez fell his friends found him lying apparently unconscious, but on examination it was found that he was dead. The cause of his sudden death is supposed to have been heart disease.

Cornell Discharged.

On Thursday morning, the trial of Sackett Cornell, editor of the Orange County Chronicle, upon a charge of criminal libel, was commenced before Justice McCoy, at Santa Ana. According to the complaint sworn to by George Hayford, of Orange, the defendant published an article, accusing the latter of wife beating, which the former charged was false. The case was not concluded until yesterday afternoon, when the justice rendered a decision, honorably acquitting Cornell. Then the charge of grand larceny against Cornell, for stealing his wife's horse and buggy, sworn to by George Bessonett, a livery-stable keeper, was also dismissed, upon motion of the prosecutor, who stated that the whole affair grew out of a misunderstanding.

The Whittier Site.

Mr. Hervey Lindley yesterday said to a HERALD reporter that he and all the other members of the committee perfectly agreed with the Governor that forty acres is not sufficient ground for the Reform School, and that 160 acres ought to be secured for the use of the institution. The only thing that puzzles all concerned is to devise some method to purchase the 120 acres needed. Mr. Lindley says the Whittier people cannot afford to give more, and the bill prohibits the use of any part of the appropriation for the purpose of buying ground. There is the dilemma. Still Mr. Lindley is sure the school will go on the site selected by the committee.

An Old-Timer Gone.

Joseph J. Bullis has been a well-known man in this county for a great number of years. He died at his home in Compton, on Friday last, at the great age of 89 years. His death will cause a pang of sorrow in many hearts. Fourteen of his grandchildren and seven of his great-grandchildren reside in this county. Five of his sons reside here. His only daughter is the wife of John Goldsworthy. His funeral takes place at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

It Will Be Built.

The big Jones block, on Marchessault street, at the Plaza, will soon be under way. Mr. Mark Jones is now waiting for the specifications for the excavations to arrive, which will be in a few days. Immediately they get here, work will begin, and the structure will then be pushed along with diligence. It will be one of the finest blocks in the city.

A New Piano Deal.

The well known firms of Powell, Haskell & Co. and Day & Hart, have joined forces and incorporated under the name of the Southern California Music Company, with a capital of $50,000, all subscribed.

Having ample capital, and representing many of the leading factories in the United States, including the popular Decker Brothers, A. B. Chase, J. & C. Fischer, and others, and the Chase, Kimball and other organs, bought at prices which are only given to the largest dealers, this company is able to offer inducements to purchasers that have never been given before in Southern California.

The company will pay especial attention to renting pianos and organs—not the old rattle-boxes that have usually been worked off on the innocent renter, but brand new instruments, of reliable makes, at reasonable prices.

Those who desire the advantage of selecting from the largest stock and greatest variety in any one wareroom on the Pacific Coast, will be shown a display of fifty of the finest instruments made, at the warerooms of the company, No. 11 North Spring street, so long known as Day's Music Store.

The "Gurney" Cab.

The Citizens' Transfer Company have placed eight Gurney cabs in different portions of the city, and a person can now ride to any part of the town within the mile circle for twenty-five cents. The stands are located at the City of Paris dry-goods store, Godfrey & Moore's drug store, Nadeau Hotel, and at their office, No. 120 North Main street.
